

ALKOOMI

'Melaleuca' Riesling

Tasting Notes:

Lifted notes of citrus zest, slate and hints of musk. Vibrant and delicate yet intense. Flavors of pink grapefruit and kaffir lime wrapped around a focused and linear backbone of sherbety acidity.

Production Notes:

Sourced from a single block of Riesling planted in 1971. The fruit is harvested in the early hours of the morning, pressed to tank keeping only the free run juice for this wine. No fining agents were used and mid palate texture was enhanced by some time on yeast lees.

Cellaring:

Drink now or cellar 8-10 years.

About Alkoomi:

Family run and operated vineyard in Frankland River, Western Australia. The original 1220 hectare property was purchased by Sandy's grandparents, Vic and Netta Lange, in 1946 and initially operated as a mixed grain and livestock farm. It was grandma Netta who chose the name "Alkoomi" for their rugged property, on land over two million years old – a local Aboriginal word meaning "a place we chose".

Alkoomi's logo is the unique and distinctively Australian grass tree, Xanthorrhoea preissii, which flourishes on the property.

Frankland River Facts:

- Frankland River is home to eight wineries.
- The region has a cool, Mediterranean climate and a long warm growing season.
- Frankland River's remote location makes it an outstanding region to find value-for-money high quality wines.
