

Kirkton Estate

“The Agnes” Reserve Chardonnay

Tasting Notes:

A rich, full-bodied Chardonnay with the perfect balance of Old and New World style. Citrus blossom, grapefruit, and nutty oak, with plenty of acidity to keep it balanced. Elegant, well-rounded, and complex.

Production Notes:

Sourced from low-yielding vines at the James Estate vineyard. This Chardonnay sees full malolactic fermentation and is aged in a combination of primarily used French and American oak for 10 months.

About Kirkton Estate:

Kirkton Estate was the first vineyard to be established in the Hunter Valley by John Busby in 1830. Kirkton’s historic importance grew from its intrinsic association with James Busby, (son of John Busby) and its role in being the incubator for what remains the largest and most diverse viticulture assessment project undertaken in Australia.

Cellaring:

Drink now or cellar for 3-5 years.

About Hunter Valley:

- Located in New South Wales, Hunter Valley is Australia’s oldest wine region, dating back to the early 19th century.
- Top varietals planted in Hunter Valley are Chardonnay, Shiraz, and Semillon.
